Electrical Engineers of the World After a Huge Job.

London's Underground Railway to Re Supplied With New Motive Power-American Firms in the Van of Competition, and Hopeful of Securing the $25,000,000 Contract.

LONDON Nov. 9.-With the dazzling prospect of securing an order worth £5,-00,000 ($25,000,000), electrical contractors and engineers of the United States. England, Germany, and France are engaged in one of the keenest competitions in the history of international business.

plans and estimates for converting its road from steam to electricity. The extraordinary size of the contract, which contemplates relaying more than fifty miles of subterranean railroad, has enlisted the attention of the largest concerns in the business. The prize will be awarded on December 1.

This battle of brains is now at its height. American bids are coming from the Westinghouse General Electric and Thomson-Houston companies. The British competitors include Mather & Platt, the Brush Electric Company, Crompton & Co., Thomas Parker & Co., and Dick, Derr & Co. Germany is represented by the Allgemeine Electrikstat Gesellschaft, Sie-mens Brothers, Schiukert & Co., and Fel-ton and Guilleaume, while the Bregguet Electrique Company, and MM. Houtin & Lebianc will attempt to secure the order for France.

American firms, relying on the prestige gained from having built the London Central "tuppenny tube" and the Metropolitan underground in Paris, expect to capture the lion's share of the big contract. The Westinghouse Company is hurrying to completion its immense plant at Manchester, which will employ 5,000 men. The Thomson-Houston Company is rushing its construction of a new factory at Rugby. In an interview Sir William Preece, consulting engineer of the Metropolitan Dis-

In an interview Sir William Preece, consulting engineer of the Metropolitan District Railway, said:

"Owing to the fact that we have not hampered the bidders with specifications of any kind, we expect to be tendered a scheme for the best system of electric traction which modern ingenuity is capable of devising. We possess facilities for a service of twenty-two trains an hour, and all ice of twenty-two trains an hour, and all we ask is a plan of operation which will test our capacity to the utmost.

"That the United States will be promi-nently represented goes without saying.

of the city's thoroughfares.

It may be safely asserted that no one ever uses the old underground roads except through the necessity of covering a long distance in a shorter time than can be done by 'bus or cab. The London fog. which during the summer, at least, leaves the streets, seems never absent from the tunnels of the inner and outer circles under London. The heavy air is charged with smoke and coal dust-bituminous coal is used—and there seems no circulation of the atmosphere. To keep the windows of the competiment closed is to reach one's journey's end hot and uncomfortable; to rave! with them open is to come into con-act with a fine black dust, which settles n the throat and eyes and covers the

With the tunnels modernized, properly lighted and ventilated, comfortable cars, and no smoke or coal dust, and only that amount of fog which is common to London above ground, hundreds of thousands of passengers who now travel on omnibuses and in cabs will use the new system. The streets will thus be relieved of countless the month. vehicles, and life in London will be no only more agreeable, but it will be safer.

confronted with the still unsuldued Boer war in South Africa, the Government, it seems likely, will have to face the antagonism of the capitalists on whose account, according to the Liberals, the war was mainly waged.

The war was certainly instigated by capitalists who expected to derive a handsome profit from it, but when they last year urged the Government to the course which resulted in the Boer ultimatum, it was expected that the cost of the war would be less than $7,00,000.

Now when the Government is threatened with a bill for about $600,000,000 as the cost of the war, the South African whom he killed had told persons that agoing to strike him.
